

Native Children Always Ride Safe

Every Trip,
Every Time

No matter how far you are going, all children riding in a vehicle should be properly restrained.

There is no rush to move children to a seatbelt-positioning booster seat just because they have reached 4 years old. Some 4-year-olds weigh less than 40 lbs. and should remain in their forward facing seats. Once children have exceeded the recommendations of their forward facing seat and have moved into a booster, they should remain using a booster seat until they are 4'9.

- All children whose weight or height is above the forward-facing limit for their CSS should use a belt positioning booster seat until the vehicle lap-and-shoulder seat belt fits properly, typically when they have reached 4 feet 9 inches tall and are between 8 and 12 years old.
- All children under 13 years old should be properly restrained in the rear seats of a vehicle for optimal protection.
